Dear Bud:

Many times since leaving East Maiden Street in the forties, I have wondered about the "doings" of Enno Henry, as Henry Butson would have called you. After all of the adverse publicity which the CIA has received in recent months, it was very reassuring to read this morning that the organization still has room for "nice guys." My congratulations and best wishes to you for what I am certain will be a most challenging and difficult job.

Sincerely,

Alexander C. Sherrard
